Report Lists Numerous Ways to Better Human Relations in Schools

"The blunt recognition of the enormity of the task and the fact that the school cannot be looked to for a push-button human relations panacea, does not give anyone a legitimate reason for copping out."

After a nine-month gestation, the Princeton schools' Advisory Council on Human Relations has released its report.

Most people in town have probably forgotten the disruption at Princeton High that led, last March, to appointment of the citizens committee. But the school board was sufficiently concerned to form the council and tell it to develop ideas which could be translated into gutsy, practical programs. No copping out on superficial recommendations.

In succeeding months, the council listened. To students, teachers, police, parents, clergymen. To all social, economic, racial, ethnic and religious backgrounds.

Council members read articles and books. They probed into other schools in other towns—what had other communities done? They spent at least one day each week at Princeton High—what's it like to "live" here?

The resulting report is colloquial, even pungent at times. It doesn't take sides and it is, in the words of a school board candidate, "outstanding."

Ray Male, chairman of the committee, mused for a moment when he was asked for the report's most important recommendations. "It's hard to assign priorities, but in my personal judgment...."

Four things stand out, in Mr. Male's view.

Reading, strengthening school guidance, the agonizing burden on kids of difficult home situations, better coordination of Princeton's community resources.

"So many tension-filled kids have trouble reading!" he exclaims.

"We're not saying that the inability to read is the cause of all disturbances, nor are we claiming that improved reading ability will prevent disturbances," the report itself cautions.

But students who can't keep up in class because they can't read are the most likely ones to act out their feelings of failure.

In Princeton, reading isn't a formal subject after elementary school. The report wants formal continuance of "special reading emphasis in all classes through grade 12."

Reading skills must be improved. "But it is imperative that this be undertaken in new ways that avoid the stigma...attached to compulsory, remedial reading efforts."

Turning to guidance, the report "strongly supports" the broadened orientation of guidance services to reflect different kinds of students, their aspirations and skills. But these guidance services should be available long before high school, and "all teachers—not just guidance counselors—should be made aware of the school system's high regard for vocational and technical training, as well as college objectives."

Deep-seated misunderstandings between parent and child, broken homes, alcoholism are heavy burdens for many students. Why not, the report suggests, a one-to-one relationship with an adult in the school, or with somebody from town who cares enough to provide urgently needed support?

Linked closely to this difficult problem is stronger coordination among Princeton's many community organizations. Make a new effort, the report urges, to bring concerned agencies and the schools closer together. Maybe Princeton needs a full-time youth director, and a youth board appointed by municipal government and authorized by the courts.

The school board, says the report, must make sure everyone understands the schools' "insistence on ethnic and racial respect and awareness within the school system." Perhaps a permanent Human Relations Council, like this temporary one.

"Racial, ethnic and other forms of unequal treatment exist and... must be rooted out by persistent leadership in favor of new attitudes and a more sensitive system that responds to individual persons."

The report underscores "the continuing importance of leadership and direction from the Superintendent, his central staff and the building principals."

Here comes the question of discipline. "There have been human relations breakdowns in schools where there has been little or no discipline (and) such breakdowns in schools where there was oppressive, unrelenting, stultifying strictness of discipline," the report has found. "Schools cannot just root out whatever is had by fiat, by directive or by being tough."

From all sides, the Council heard the "strong view that discipline is desirable. But a so-called "quiet school" may be deceiving. It looks "well-managed, well-mannered in appearance, but it can be much more susceptible to emotional eruption and sudden turmoil," the report warns.

Human relations means "much noisy give-and-take...this is healthy and to be encouraged, so long as it takes place in an atmosphere of friendliness or—as a

Carpi, on Stand, Recounts in Detail His Actions On Day of His Murdered Wife's Disappearance

Colin C. Carpi left a message for his lawyer at about 3:35 p.m. Monday, February 8, 1971, saying that he would have to pick his children up at school because his wife, Laura, hadn't done so, according to the testimony of Mrs. LeAnne Landefeld, a former secretary for one of Mr. Carpi's attorneys.

Mrs. Joan K. Fiore, secretary at the Princeton law firm of McCarthy, Bacsik and Hicks, whose phone Mr. Carpi used to call Mrs. Landefeld's office, said she didn't know what Mr. Carpi had said to Mrs. Landefeld, but that no message from Princeton Day School came for Mr. Carpi that afternoon.

Mr. Carpi, testifying in his own defense, said he did visit the McCarthy office that afternoon, did call his other lawyer's office, but left no message, and then stopped at his home at 148 Fairway Drive. As he entered the door, the telephone was ringing, the defendant testified.

The caller was his daughter, Jennifer, then 11, who told him that Mrs. Carpi had not yet called for her and the other children. That, Mr. Carpi said, was the first knowledge he had that his estranged wife had not picked up the children.

The discrepancy in that testimony apparently constitutes what Prosecutor Richard Altman earlier had termed "THE 'grievous error' marring the otherwise 'perfect murder.'" Whose testimony the jury finds most convincing could well determine the fate of the 42 year-old Mr. Carpi, who is standing trial in Mercer County Superior Court, charged with murder in the first degree.

The state rested its case last Friday. On Monday, Defense Lawyer Gerald R. Stockman called Mr. Carpi to the stand. Instead of making the customary motion for acquittal following the state's case, Mr. Stockman reserved the right for such a motion until after the defense's testimony. Mr. Carpi wanted his side to be heard, Mr. Stockman said.

End in Sight. On Tuesday Jennifer, now 14, and Colin Jr., 13, both testified in their father's behalf. The other Carpi children, David, 12, and Laura, 10, were present in the court room. The defense was expected to call its last witnesses by Thursday. If so, the summary statements could be made on Friday and the case could go to the jury at that time.

Throughout Monday morning's direct examination, Mr. Stockman phrased his questions in such a way that his client, Mr. Carpi, would be able to explain or correct the testimony already heard from prosecution witnesses. The light moments that have been commonplace on previous days were few in number.

In cross examination, Mr. Altman pursued a line of questioning that in effect suggested money as another motive for the murder, in addition to custody of the children. Mr. Carpi testified that, in a deposition hearing before Mrs. Carpi's lawyers on February 5, 1971, he had appraised his net worth at about $341,000. But, as some of the fledgling business ventures in which he had invested grew and matured, Mr. Carpi estimated that his assets might grow to $1,443,300 in two years.

Mild Frustration. In his testimony under direct examination Mr. Carpi said he and his attorneys went to the deposition hearing February 5 hoping for a quick resolution to the question of how much support he should pay his wife. Mr. Carpi said he was afraid that, in order to meet his obligations, he would have to dispose of some "very illiquid" securities at a fraction of their face value. The defense had introduced that testimony to show the necessity of Mr. Carpi's trip to New York the following Monday, the day Mrs. Carpi disappeared.

Mr. Altman, however, focussed on then potential appreciation of wealth. He also interrogated Mr. Carpi concerning his activities on February 8, and demanded the answers be simply "yes," "no," or "I don't know," Mr. Carpi, who in his direct testimony had been cautioned against testifying when there was no question before him, exhibited mild frustration at Mr. Altman's form of questioning. "If you would just let me explain, it's very simple," he said at one point.

The court room was quieter than it had ever been during Mr. Carpi's testimony. Several members of Mr. Stockman's law firm, sitting in the front row of spectators observing the proceedings, sat with their hands tensely locked under their arms.

Mr. Stockman, whose boyish face and stylish dress belie the fact that he is 38 years old and the father of seven, slouched back in his chair, casually dangling his chrome-frame aviator glasses, as Mr. Altman pressed his interrogation. Mr. Carpi was equally relaxed. He sat with his legs crossed, and his left arm draped over the railing behind the witness stand. His voice and hands were steady throughout the day.

Hoped for Repair. Under direct examination, Mr. Carpi testified that on the day of his disappearance he held hope that he and his wife could repair their marriage. He said that until he saw the evidence presented earlier in this trial he thought there might be a five percent chance that his wife was still alive.

Mr. Stockman then asked: "Colin, did you have anything to do with the death or disappearance of Laura Carpi?" Mr. Carpi, who had been looking through some notes, put them down midway through the question and looked in the direction of Mr. Stockman and the audience. "No."

Most of the defendant's testimony was aimed at clearing up inconsistencies and evidence of unusual behavior brought out by prosecution witnesses. Princeton Township Detective Sergeant Norman Servis, for example, had testified that Mr. Carpi told him he made three telephone calls the morning of February 8, totalling more than 100 minutes. In fact, they took just seven minutes, according to telephone billing records.

One call, of two minutes to his mother, was made at 10:29 that morning. "I had told Sergeant Servis it was longer," Mr. Carpi said. "But it was just confusion on my part. I had talked to her longer the night before. I just confused the two calls."

Color Coincidental? The prosecution has established that the color of Mr. Carpi's Ford Torino station wagon was identical in color to that of Mrs. Carpi's Torino station wagon. "I checked back and found I ordered that car in February, 1970. It was delivered on April 20. I was never aware of Laura's car. I guess she got it from her parents."

Mr. Carpi purchased the car under an assumed name, Fred Merriwell. Mr. Stockman asked if he could explain that. "Yes, yes I can," Mr. Carpi said. "The primary reason was that I didn't want to get into a situation where my wife's lawyers would say, 'You bought yourself a new car, now you should buy your wife a new car.' But there was another reason." Plan A.

Mr. Stockman asked the defendant to elaborate. "Just prior to our separation, the children were suffering from a number of undesirable effects. They were being taken to psychiatrists and being characterized as schizophrenic. Jennifer was told to take 26 pills a day. David was on dexadrine. It was of concern to me and the children. We talked about going away, just disappearing." For the plan to work, Mr. Carpi said, he needed a car that could not be traced.

"But after the separation it became apparent that the problem was abating," Mr. Carpi testified. "We abandoned the plan." After planning to hide the car at the Princeton Junction railroad station, Mr. Carpi said, he instead used it from the day he acquired it openly at his Fairway Drive home.

Parking Lots Closed. Mr. Carpi was asked why it took him 45 minutes to locate a parking place in New York on February 8, when he went to Morgan Guaranty Bank to withdraw some securities which he planned to sell to his mother for $50,000 to alleviate his financial difficulties.

"I learned later that there had been a strike that day of union parking lots. Others were closed in sympathy," he said. "I tried every little lot around there and then I observed that a lot of cars were double-parking and the police weren't ticketing them. So I minimum—proper civility." Let people learn by doing, the report advises, but keep things within proper bounds. "It is," conceded the council, "a delicate task."

Much of this noisy give-and-take occurs, of course, outside the classroom. Council members heard "repeated testimony of breakdowns in good human relations outside the formal classroom."

Cafeteria crowding and noise, locker-room jostling, the school bus and its confines....

"Outside education" should be strengthened and expanded, the report recommends. Camping, trips—all kinds of group activity with teachers, students from various backgrounds, parents, "non-parent adults." The faculty should be urged to develop these programs.

As one student told the Council, "it would give us a chance to realize that teachers are human, too."

Notes Evaluated. What about the students' role? The parents? the community's?

• "There are important areas where students need to be consulted. There are other areas where they need to be reminded that they do not yet have the competence that justifies authority."

• "We need to remind ourselves that there are important areas of governance in which parents still retain sovereignty."

• "Attitudes and behavior of persons inside school cannot realistically be isolated from attitudes and behavior displayed outside the school by all of us."

Members of the Council want to see the Wednesday Program used for many Council recommendations. Discussions could be held on imaginative ways to get at human relations aspects of a problem, with the "general expectation that all teachers will participate in such programs."

Use the Wednesday Program to develop, within the staff, "exemplary patterns of professional style: receptivity, openness, adults-behaving-like-adults."

Additional Opportunities. Also, through "Wednesday," teachers could develop curriculum as a way of covering human relations. Next year, for example, existing "Black Voices" and "Afro History" courses at Princeton High should be integrated into the regular curriculum so that all students would benefit, the report says. By mid-year, the program should be expanded to include the cultural contributions of other racial and ethnic groups.

finally double-parked near the bank."

Using a map and felt tip pen, Mr. Carpi traced his movements and times through Princeton that morning. Between 7:40 and 7:50, he went to Hinkson's on Nassau Street to buy newspapers. "That's what I did first every morning."

Then he went to the Post Office on Alexander Street. Then he drove to Mrs. Carpi's house at 213 State Road and put the support check through the mail slot. He set that time at between 8:35 and 8:40.

He said he was back at his office in his home at about 9 and began proofreading a 50- to 60-page affidavit he was preparing for his lawyers in the custody and support proceedings. He placed several local calls and at 10:17 made his first long-distance call, to Trenton.

'Most Logical.' Mr. Carpi testified that he left for New York at 11:15, and came through Princeton to check with his lawyers. His decision to stop at his house at about 4 p.m. was a spur-of-the-moment one, he said, since his normal route from Princeton to Philadelphia took him out Fosedale Road, less than a block from home, and then over back roads to Interstate 95.

"I would like to represent," he said at one point during his testimony, "that these are the shortest and most logical routes."

IDA Building Given Site-Plan Approval as Protests Persist

Site plans for the Institute for Defense Analyses building off Terhune Road were unanimously approved last Wednesday-Thursday by the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

It was a six-hour meeting that ended at 2 a.m. Thursday, after the persistent opponents of IDA's move from the Princeton University campus to the Township, had laid their objections before municipal officials for the third time this year. They made a fourth appearance four days later, when they spoke before Township Committee Monday.

Here's the IDA situation now:

IDA has site-plan approval, but conditionally: drainage solutions must be approved by the Township engineer before a building permit can be granted.

IDA announced Monday night that it won't build the controversial high barbed-wire fence. But IDA insists on retaining the right to build such a fence if the situation demands.

Secrecy and citizen apprehension about IDA's government work will be discussed publicly on Monday, February 4, before Township Committee by Dr. Richard Leibler, director of IDA; Dr. Richard Falk, Professor international law at Princeton University who is well-known as an anti-Vietnam War spokesman, and Dr. Marvin Goldberger, University physicist who has worked with IDA personnel.

Opponents do not accept the site-plan conditions and are still threatening court action to keep IDA out of Princeton. So far, there is no indication that they will return to the Planning Board, which next meets Tuesday, February 5.

Walkout Staged. Three opponents who have been spokesmen—Steve Slaby, Robert Hosford and Mrs. Julia Hosford—made statements to Committee Monday night after Mayor Jay Bleiman had explained the conditions of site plan approval. When IDA's deputy director, Lee Neuirth, rose to speak, the three and about eight or ten members of the audience supporting them, got up and began to walk out.

"Wait a minute," Dr. Neuirth said. "Maybe you'll want to hear what I have to say."

But the opponents did not reply and all had left the room before Dr. Neuirth made his announcement: no barbed-wire fence.

Mayor Bleiman has hoped IDA would give up on the fence, which he has regarded as an unfortunate symbol.

In his five-page statement, Mr. Hosford said he was still very much concerned about IDA, particularly about environmental impact. He lives at 430 Terhune Road, in front of IDA's lot. His questions have related to drainage, noise, fumes, lights and the barbed-wire fence.

Mr. Hosford also charged that Township Committee and the Planning Board subject citizens who appear before them to ridicule, verbal abuse and an unwelcoming attitude. "The patrician, quasi-legal tenor of many meetings of this Committee and the Planning Board, simply turns people off," he declared, "to get a greater citizen response, I would suggest you treat people with more respect."

Intimidation Charged. Mrs. Hosford said some officials were arrogant: "intimidation is obviously one of the tactics used by the IDA and some members of both committees, to frustrate and belittle attempts by citizens to protest against something they feel is unfair and undesirable."

Later, after the opponents had staged their walk-out, Mayor Bleiman said, "I regret enormously that perception, and I am saddened that the community is so ruptured."

Mr. Slaby accused Committee and the Planning Board of having "knuckled under to political pressure from the Pentagon." In reference to a Washington lawyer who appeared before the Planning Board Wednesday for IDA, Mr. Slaby declared, "Nobody on the board came to the defense of the citizens of this community whom they represent."

That Planning Board meeting began with a terse statement from chairman Hans K. Sander replying to a "memorandum of understanding" signed by Mr. Hosford and neighbors, and released to the press.

The document said Mr. Sander had assured Mr. Hosford by telephone that the board would withhold a site plan decision until February to give citizens more time. He also told Mr. Hosford no building permit would be issued before a February public hearing, the document said.

Statement Unauthorized. Mr. Sander told Wednesday's meeting Mr. Hosford was not authorized by him to make these statements. He emphasized he was only one of 14 board members and in no position to make a personal commitment.

He had told Mr. Hosford, he related, that if IDA's opponents brought up their site-plan reservations, the board would listen and determine whether it was reasonable to hold off on site plan approval. Regarding the permit, Mr. Sander said the board isn't empowered to issue building permits in any case, except that site plan rejection means—no permit.

Under the site-plan conditions, IDA agrees to post security money, to assure that run-off water won't be any greater after IDA's building is finished than it is now. This drainage work and a water retention basin must be completed within 18 months. A performance bond will cover the subsequent 18 months, after completion. Dollar amounts of the bonding will be determined by the nature of the improvements. IDA's engineers will design. Township Engineer Joseph Hodak must give final approval.

IDA must also comply with

BOROUGH MAN CHARGED

In Nassau Inn Theft. A Borough resident has been charged with armed robbery by Borough police in connection with the theft November 5 of $52,500 from a Nassau Inn courier on his way to the bank.

Paul Esposito, 24, 9 Harris Road, accompanied by his lawyer, surrendered himself at police headquarters last Tuesday afternoon, after he had been informed by detectives working on the case that they had a warrant for his arrest, charging him with robbery. Esposito was later released in $10,000 bail, pending a court appearance Feb. 20.

Of the money lost, $15,500 was in cash and the remainder in non-negotiable checks, a majority of them representing contributions to the United Fund which had been given to the courier to deposit by an official of Palmer Square, Inc. None of the cash or the checks have been recovered, Chief Michael Carnevale said. He added that the arrest was the result of an investigation conducted by Det. Anthony Ranfone, Anthony Ranfone and Det. Timothy Huizing.

Immediately after the holdup near the Post Office, the gunmen jumped into a nearby getaway car, but Chief Carnevale said that police had nothing further to say about an accomplice.

Four Township Candidates View Problems Facing Princeton Schools

Dietrich Meyerhofer

Henry Wood

Cornelia Hopfield

James B. Smith

The quietest school board election since merger—almost eight years—will be held Tuesday, February 5. Township voters will choose two school board members from four candidates. Borough voters have a no-contest situation: Hannah Fox is running unopposed.

Here, listed by their positions on the ballot, are the four Township candidates with some of their views on Princeton's schools.

J.B. Smith, 485 Princeton-Kingston Road. Marketing Manager, American Cyanamid.

"In the past, there's been an unfortunate amount of head-butting over school issues. I don't like a factional approach to problems—I honestly think most things are amenable to solutions that are agreeable to most people."

"As I see it, there are four things facing the schools today: first is what I call 'academic atmosphere.' We must try to see that children who WANT to be in school are not disturbed by those who don't want to be there, and we must try even harder to see that those who don't want to be there, are exposed to educational and human values that just might change their minds. That means we must motivate them, direct them and above all, like them."

"Then, there's the decreasing enrollment and what it will do to the number and content of courses. It will take good management to cut down to a smaller curriculum. Reductions in staff must be made so as not to inflict hardship and cause disruption."

"Designing and generating new programs—we must strive to seek out new programs, plan them properly and build in evaluation procedures to judge them as we go along, and make corrections. And finally, of course, there is the physical renovation of the high school."

Township residents to whom Mr. Smith has talked, mention "academic atmosphere—discipline in the schools," Mr. Smith says, "overcrowding in Johnson Park is another thing. I will try to correct that next year, if I am elected."

"As I talk to voters," he observes, "I find much less contentiousness than in previous years."

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have had four children in the Princeton schools; the youngest is currently in Riverside. Mr. Smith has lived here "27 out of the past 31 years."

Cornelia F. Hopfield, 183 Hartley Avenue. Former elementary school teacher, currently League of Women Voters' liaison on board of Princeton Community Housing.

"If I'm elected, I will absolutely insist on closer evaluation of teachers: the key to quality education is superior teachers, and we must have a close evaluation so that we retain only the superior ones."

"The problem of tenure is one the board must pay attention to. And every teacher we have, must grow professionally in a more directed way."

This could be accomplished, Mrs. Hopfield says, by using the Wednesday Program to focus on an evaluation of curriculum—"the elementary school science curriculum seems spotty and weak, for example. Evaluation would in turn, lead into an exploration of teaching methods."

More could be done, she believes "that DIRECTLY improves day-to-day teaching, and the Wednesday Program could be focused here."

"Reading is a concern of mine. Kids who get into trouble often seem to be those with reading problems. Reading is basic to all school work, the way our schools are set up today. We need to get everyone on the staff concerned with reading."

Mrs. Hopfield also questions whether enough is done for the gifted child. "The memoranda and the literature about Princeton schools don't mention the gifted pupil, but these children should be challenged, as every child should be challenged."

Because children in the Middle School are in a difficult age bracket, says Mrs. Hopfield, the school system ought to "focus more attention" on the Middle School. Mrs. Hopfield and Professor Hopfield (physics department) ment, Princeton University) have three children: one in Riverside School, a 16 year-old at Princeton Day School and a two-year-old at home. The Hopfields have lived in Princeton for ten years.

Dietrich Meyerhofer, 979 Stuart Road, Physicist, RCA. Mr. Meyerhofer also emphasizes the importance of the tenure question. "Our common goal has been somewhat overlooked," he observes, "namely, that we are more interested in hiring the outstanding teachers than in the percentage on tenure. The school board must insist that guidelines for evaluation are applied thoroughly. It must only act on contracts when it has been convinced of the teacher's excellence by the evaluators."

Development of these evaluation teams should be an important project, the candidate believes, and he adds, "In this connection, continuing training of teachers must be an important concern. New teachers and substitutes should be given adequate guidance so they can function most effectively."

Mr. Meyerhofer would like to see the school board, through an expansion of its committee system, initiate proposals rather than just react as proposals come from the administration. An expanded board committee system, he explains, could include administration people who are affected by a particular proposal, teachers, students and citizens. Such committees could initiate proposals, communicate about them and make recommendations to the full board," he says.

As it is now, he points out, most proposals are presented by the administration, then discussed by the board as a whole to be accepted or rejected. It isn't possible for every board member to become totally familiar with every issue; the board doesn't always communicate with other segments of the school community until issues are already decided, and it's hard to tell whether the board has indeed consulted everybody who might add valuable comments, he believes.

When Princeton High is remodeled, Mr. Meyerhofer says, there should be "strong emphasis on flexibility," so that future changes in educational procedure can easily be accommodated. "The increasing importance of electronics in industry, and data processing in business must be realized," he suggests. "Vocational education must be considered as well as academic education."

The Meyerhofers have lived in Princeton for 16 years. They have one child in the eighth grade and another in the freshman class at the high school.

Henry Wood, 259 Mt. Lucas Road, Project manager, Applied Data Research. "I believe in as much diversity in the schools as can be managed: Learning Community, open classroom, structure...some kids learn one way, some another. And where 'progressive' or 'strict discipline' is concerned, I fall between two schools!"

"The main thing is a teacher who can get through to the students. Kids recognize a good teacher and respond to a good teacher."

"As I see it, the issue is: how are we to maintain the current good work in the schools, continue to make progress without sacrificing achievements—because with enrollment decline, progressive programs start to go—and without raising taxes to such a level that Princeton would become, even more than now, a high-level income enclave?"

Priorities Essential. The broad solution, Mr. Wood believes, is "to set strict priorities: faculty comes before facilities. I would recommend re-considering the option chosen to renovate the high school."

The "Option two," selected by the board, "will cost a great deal," he warns. "I wavered between Three and Four—the two least costly."

Continuing to discuss costs, Mr. Wood says he does not believe the Princeton community fully grasps the financial implications of a regional sewer. "That price tag is unknown," he warns, "but the sewer is an inescapable necessity, and we have no new construction going on to broaden our tax base. This seems remote from a consideration of day-by-day teaching, but it's a vital question."

Turning to the school board,

Mr. Wood says he thinks boards have been "too active" in past years. "Intervened too much in the day-to-day things that are the business of the superintendent and the principals. These people are qualified professionals—hire them, then let them DO it!" He is also concerned about how far the board should go in allowing townspeople to pressure them.

Community Players' "Sister George" Succeeds Only Partially in Recording Her Tragic Story

ME AND SISTER GEORGE: Toni Tavarone is Sister George (right) in Community Players' production of "The Killing of Sister George." In this scene, she is with the fortune teller Madame Xenie, played by Barbara Herzberg. The fortune teller is warning of "a slight emotional upset" in the future.

The Princeton Community Players' current production, "The Killing of Sister George," manages only fitfully to sound the sad note of its title character's agony. As a result, it fails both to engage the audience in the pathetic plight of Sister George or to give substance to the play's somewhat tenuous attempt to lift its theme to a universal metaphor of the human condition.

This is a disappointment, since the play struggles at times to come to life, and in those few moments in which the cast manages to cooperate, the audience is indeed involved and moved.

The action of the play centers around Sister George's role in a BBC radio serial called "Applehurst". In it, she (Toni Tavarone) plays a rugged nurse (The British would say, sister,) who puts up with the environs of the town of Applehurst dispensing chicken soup and homey advice to its benighted inhabitants.

So involved is she in the world and idea of Applehurst that she and her friends think of her as Sister George. In her long run on the show, the nation has taken her to its bosom as Sister George also. In her honor they have given her many public awards, including naming a geriatric ward after her. Lately, however, her ratings, as well as that of the show, have been dropping, and Sister George fears she will be written out.

Doubt Leads to Drink. The situation is further complicated because she is constantly harrassed by doubts of the faithfulness of her lover-roommate, Childie (Elizabeth Bolick).

Faced with possible collapse of the two vulnerable worlds which have become her life, she turns even more heavily to drink and doubt. As the jackals, who have waited for her to falter, close in, her past indiscretions emerge from the shadows in ever more foreboding forms. All of George's bluster and bravado begin to crumble as she tries to deal with the feline eminence of BBC administration, the misnamed, Mrs. Mercy Croft (Susan Zimmerman). Even the advice of Madame Xenia, (Barbara Herzberg), a clairvoyant who lives downstairs, is to little avail.

After Mrs. Croft emerges as a threat to Sister George on still another level, we can see that the end is inevitable and only the events are left to be played out. Somehow as Sister George struggles and only manages to drive nail after nail into her own coffin, we should be swept up in the struggle. But, we are not.

Basically the play has never caught us up in its world. For the most part, it is isolated bits and pieces of acting joined together with oratory and histrionics.

As for the actors, Toni

Tavarone, in the title role, seemed at times bewildered by the character of Sister George and failed to reconcile the seeming inconsistencies in her makeup. Because she could not convincingly portray the lusty and sometimes brutish side of George, there was not the contrasts necessary to give true dimension to the vulnerable and pathetic side of the woman. It did not help the situation that Childie, whom she abuses so often, was at least six inches taller than she, or that Ms. Tavarone's face had none of the heavy traffic quality that would go with a woman of Sister George's past.

It was not that Ms. Tavarone did not have her moments. Her scene on her imaginary motor bike bustling through Applehurst, greeting the townsfolk, roaring forth her favorite hymn was almost transcendent. (More flexible lighting would have helped measurably here as in many other places.) Then, too, there is a long moment in the final act when she returns to her flat decked out in a perfectly outrageous hat and attempts to make peace with a world that will not stop until her final humiliation.

Not Wholly Convincing. Elizabeth Bolick as Childie worked hard at her role. A little too hard, perhaps, to be convincing. It seemed that she played everything at the same tempo, volume and intensity. This should have been picked up before production, since Ms. Bolick has a definite stage presence and gave indications of a deeper grasp of her somewhat two dimensional role at times.

Susan Zimmerman as Mercy Croft purred and glided sinuously about the set in the most archly sinister fashion as the agent manifest of George's demise. Her first scene was all but flawless as you could feel her back arch and claws slide out as she played with George's fears as a cat would with a mouse. Somehow this quality did not sustain itself in the last act. Here the veneer of the fashion model, the smiling impersonality of the airline stewardess, the cloying reassurances of the mortician, conveyed none of the satisfaction which Mercy Croft must have felt in crushing Sister George.

The glorious moments of the evening were all Barbara Herzberg's. She was incredible with her hennaed hair, her jangling jewelry, her tarot pack and her honest humanity. Watching her raise an eyebrow, seeing the uncoiling of her hands, and observing her shuffle about the room in tacky slippers were beautiful things to watch. Sadly they pointed out the sense of life that was so often missing from the other portrayals.

Perhaps the major drawback was a set that, while pleasing to the eye, was too often a hindrance to the performance. Actors were upstaged at crucial times because they were boxed in.

In the exchange between Mercy Croft and Childie in the third act, too much of the action is hidden from the audience because of the placement of the sofa. Distances between actors in some scenes caused a tennis match syndrome which hampered the involvement of the audience. One particularly annoying fact was a door in the alcove which invites all kinds of interpretation either symbolical or literal and turns out to be simply a backdrop.

The final crusher of the evening epitomizes another aspect of the production, the lack of attention to detail. As Sister George agonizingly slumps into a chair to hear her eulogy over the radio, it comes not from the radio which is extreme stage right, but from the sound booth, extreme stage left.

There will be two performances of the play at the Unitarian Church on Cherry Hill Road this Friday and Saturday, January 25 and 26 at 8:30. Tickets are $3.50. If some shape is given the play bet-

WANT TO TRY OUT?

For Players' Production? "The Loves of Cass McGuire" is the next production from the rehearsal rooms of Princeton Community Players and auditions for the ten acting parts will be held next Monday and Wednesday, January 28 and 30, at 8 p.m. each night in the Little Theatre of the Unitarian Church.

Members of the Players and the general public are welcome at the try-outs. There are six male and four female parts to be filled. Norman F. Washburne is directing.

"The Loves of Cass McGuire" is by Brian Friel, who wrote "Philadelphia, Here I Come." It has been described as "nostalgic, funny, a play of sentiment and wit" (that's the Wall Street Journal critic) and as "lyrical, emotional, with the rueful imagination of the true Irish poet" (New York Post.)

...FOR CHILDREN

"Witch End is Up." Yes, that's her name: Witch End. She's the good witch. The bad witch is named Scary Fairy, and they're both in the cast of "Witch End is Up," the annual Children's Theatre production of the Pennington Players, Inc.

The play will be given during March. Organizations are invited to book the play as a fund-raising event by calling the Players at 737-0718, and arranging for a date.

Witch End, the good witch, and her son have had a spell hexed on them by the bad witch. A young peasant girl, by saying the magic words, breaks the spell. The forest becomes alive and trees bloom and animals cavort around and there's even a good chase scene.

Lorraine Duthie will be Witch End and Lisa Ward will be Scary Fairy. The peasant girl with the Pure and Loving Heart, will be Shelly Beyer, and her deaf befuddled hard-working Uncle Giorgi, Warren Raymond.

Anita Howe has been cast as the Loyal, Clever and Witty Fox and Danny Durazo as the Clumsy Bear (he's really a prince, but don't tell.)

Forest animals will be Jonathan Epperson, Catherine Sickels, Jill Vanselow, Lisa Durazo, Lynn Chase, Lisa Fell, Erica Raymond and Garth Raymond.

Ray J. Howe is the director, Sandra M. Jefferson the producer and Jack Rees, assistant to both. Richard M. Loatman has designed the set and Mrs. D. Barton Stevens, the costumes. Nannette Rees will do make-up and Rosanne Picerno, properties.

a concert this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 and 11 p.m. It's a production of Theatre Intime and will be given in Murray Theatre.

Although Roth and Davidson are both performers, they rarely play their music live, preferring to create in the studio, with tape. In the studio, Roth points out, a single person can play two or three different instruments on different tracks, never getting the total musical picture until the 'remix.' Live, everything happens at once, meaning you have a more naturally solid sound and the musicians can play off each other more easily."

Featured musicians will be Davidson on guitar and Roth on drums, with Joe Bordash, guitar and vocals; Skip Kennedy, keyboards; Joey Napoleon, bass; Tom Stange, reeds; Juanita Burch, bass clarinet and Jack Clay, trumpet.

Special guests will be Mary

Fowle and Cathy Blount, vocals and Steve Miller with pedal steel guitar.

MOVEMENT....

Mime and....Conventional mime gesture, or movement as a way of developing individual awareness. Both will be explored in two classes offered this spring by Creative Theatre Unlimited.

Registration will be this Thursday, 7-9:30 p.m., at Trinity Church. Or, information may be obtained from 924-1601.

Jane Ffitch, English actress, will teach "Mime and Improvisation." Tuesday evenings from 8-10 p.m. Students will explore conventional mime gesture to gain understanding of mime as an art form. In addition, Japanese "NO" Theatre, Chinese Kibuki, early English "dumb-shows" and the work of such mime artists as Marceau and Tati will be explored. No previous experience is required of enrollees.

FFITCH AND CLINE: Two jovial teachers, ready to start classes in mime and creative movement under the auspices of Creative Theatre Unlimited. Jane Ffitch, left, will teach mime (and intermediate acting) and Pat Cline, right, will help students explore creative movement. Registration at Trinity Church this Thursday evening.

Pat Cline, who has taught many "movement" classes in the Princeton area, will teach "Creative Movement" Wednesday mornings from 10-11:30. She will emphasize the development of improved body alignment, greater kinesthetic sense and creativity through the personal discovery of basic body movements. Here again, no previous experience in movement or dance, is required.

RECITAL SUNDAY

At Princeton Inn. Lance Vining, tenor, will present a recital this Sunday, at 3 p.m. at Princeton Inn College.

The program will include songs by American Revolutionary composers, Schubert lieder, Bertioz concert arias, William Blake songs by R. Vaughan Williams, and modern Italian songs by Pizzetti and Castelnuovo-Tedesco.

Mr. Vining, formerly a soloist with the Army Chorus, has sung the role of Armand in the American premiere of Massenet's "Terese," and has sung Aeneas in Berlioz's "Les Troyens" at a lecture-performance given by Robert Lawrence for the Metropolitan Opera Guild.

GARDEN

The New Land. The second part and long-awaited sequel to "The Emmigrants". Together, director Jan Troell's two films stand as the ultimate pioneer-family saga.

The New Land portion of this epic making of America gets Swedish settlers Max Von Sydow and Liv Ullmann rooted in Minnesota. It starts approximately two hours after the conclusion of The Emmigrants and takes its quietly determined band of Swedes—father (Von Sydow), mother (Ullmann) brother (Eddie Axberg) and others—from the start of their settlement to the death of Von Sydow at an advanced age.

In between, the film (it is 161 minutes long) covers the disappointments, the accomplishments, the changes and the more occasional tragedies that befall these determined people—ocasi-onally in exquisite detail. It is a lovely, lovely film.

The middle of the film is the achingly presented odyssey of young Axberg, a young innocent adrift in the Wild West. He catches gold fever, sets off for California with his steadfast pal. They get lost in the desert, his companion drinks poisoned water and dies.

Axberg stumbles on to California only to see his only other friend die of yellow fever and finally has the money he has managed to make a deal from him by speculators. Broken in spirit and health, he returns home and in a beautiful, lyrical scene he dies with his feet in a brook, his head resting on the bank—at peace.

The New Land is never glorious, seldom happy and hardly romantic—surely not what most people probably had hoped the characters of The Emmigrants would achieve. But no less real for all that, no less important.

SALE CHANGED
At Stone's Linen. The current energy crisis with its many shortages has affected every segment of the economy. On the local level one direct result is Stone's Linen Shop's decision to forego its annual January White Sale for the first time due to the limited quantities of cotton.
However, it is still possible to buy many favorite items at a savings as the new owners, Barbara and Burt Sussman are having a store-wide sale of 10 to 50 percent off.

The main difference between the two sales is that with a white sale it is usually possible to order sheets and towels against the next shipment, and here is the Sussman's problem. The new sheets will probably cost more at a white sale price than those currently in stock, making it impossible for them to give the customer a saving. Therefore, they decided to have a sale limited to items in the store.

Sheets and towels are on sale at 10 per cent off the regular prices, and the Sussmans have continued to stock Wamsutta's all cotton sheets that have always been so popular with Stone's customers. We also saw Martex's pretty new parosol stripe pattern with a ruffled border and woven ribbon trim in blue, yellow, pink or mint green.

Monogramming Offered. Through the co-operation of a monogrammer, Stone's is having a white sale on monogrammed Martex Sovereign and Luxor towels; and every color, including some not usually in stock is available. Other aspects of the store-wide sale which continues until February 2 include 50 percent off on all Christmas items and 20 percent off on children's toys which the Sussmans are phasing out. However, the baby pillows and easels will be continued.

Mrs. Sussman told us that last September when they learned that Stone's Linen Shop was for sale, she was thrilled. "I had always shopped here and considered it a small, delightful store."

Now that they have owned it for several months, Mrs. Sussman is still as enthusiastic with a love for the merchandise and the people who shop there. She and her husband wish to continue Stone's image of carrying fine linens, while updating some lines with a co-ordinated look that nowadays can go so far as to include wallpaper and shades.

New Items. Some of their introductions this fall have included throw pillows in zippered cases that can be easily laundered, $4 to $7; sleeping bags that unzip into comforters in a small white flower print on brown, red, gold, blue or green, $18; and trapunto pillow kits by Mary Morgan of Cranbury, $11 to $14.

Within the next few weeks the new Spring selections will be displayed and Mr. Sussman treated us to a sneak preview. We saw some attractive and informative plastic placemats that give bar recipes, describe various cheeses or tell all about wine including the cooking, storing and serving, $1.25 each.

Another pretty placemat is a Danish animal and flower needlepoint design that has been plastic coated. Then with matching napkins we saw oval mats in a rainbow gingham of yellow, blue, pink and green or a delicate flower print, $11.50 for four napkins and

by Mel Atlas, Reg. Pharm

Whether children eat the right foods or not, often depends on the emotional climate around the dinner table. Parents who provide good foods and happy talk at the table, will make eating a pleasant part of normal activity for their children. Constant nagging of children often tends to set them against eating, or being sociable. Hurrying, failure to listen—all of these can be detrimental to your child's nutrition.

Supplements for all your nutritional needs will be found in the vast supply of vitamins at THE FORER PHARMACY, 160 Witherspoon. For all your pharmaceutical needs, health and beauty supplies rely on the friendly service of FORER...open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays till 3 p.m. Phone 921-7287.

HELPFUL HINT: Adequate sleep and rest assures good nutrition, for most people.

railroading. The ultimate in membership in an adult club such as the one in Rocky Hill."

Of special interest among the trains is a five-car Spirit of '76 train that Tyco, the leading manufacturer of mass produced railroad equipment, is offering in conjunction with the Bi-centennial celebration. We also liked the beautifully engineered Marlin mini-club, the smallest train in the world.

Mr. Woolwine told us the World War II military dioramas have been increasingly popular over the last few years. This involves not only the time to assemble and paint the models but also research into a particular battle or front so that the right planes, tanks and soldiers will be used.

The military kits come in three different scales, including an HIO one that can be incorporated into the train layouts. As a sidelight of this interest, strategic games such as Korea, Spitfire or Austerlitz are also available.

Nassau Hobby and Crafts also has car and ship models, Aurora racing sets and, looking toward warmer weather, remote control model airplanes. Mr. Woolwine suggests building a few planes now so that you'll be all set when the flying season arrives. This hobby also can become complex with individual motors, some with mufflers, and ultimately radio control equipment.

For the young child's first kit with only five to ten parts, there is a choice of prehistoric monsters or a mummy who glows in the dark, 88 cents and up. Other aspects of the store include science kits, toy ears and trucks and an entire half of the store devoted to crafts.

We saw materials and instruction books for decoupage, string art, macrame and stained glass just to name a few. Printed patterns, hooks and pre-cut Spinnerin wool for rug hooking are also here, and if the pattern you want isn't in stock, it can be ordered.

Nassau Hobby and Crafts is at 142 Nassau Street, and the store is open from 9 to 6 Monday through Saturday with Friday evening hours until 9.

Man Evicted from Bar Rams Police Car

Two Trenton policemen required hospital treatment Monday after their car was allegedly rammed intentionally by John H. Godshalk, 27, 2 Windsor Drive, Princeton Junction. They reported having evicted Mrs. Godschalk from a Trenton bar for causing a disturbance shortly after midnight.

According to the patrolmen, about an hour after his eviction, Mr. Godschalk drove his car into the side of the police car and then raced away. One of the patrolmen fired at the fleeing automobile three times, one shot hitting the right rear tire, which went flat.

Mr. Godshalk managed to drive about five more miles on the deflated tire before he was caught in Hamilton Township. A Hamilton police car from that municipality blocked Klockner Road at Linton Avenue, the driver jumping a curb to avoid the crash and coming to a stop on a nearby lawn.

Mr. Godschalk was admitted to Hamilton Hospital for treatment of a possible head injury. He has been charged with atrocious assault and battery with an automobile, eluding police, leaving the scene of an accident and several traffic violations.

WOMEN TO GATHER

As Officeholders. Women in New Jersey who are elected public officials will gather this Saturday from noon until 5 in Borough Hall with Governor Brendan T. Byrne. The meeting, called by State Senator Anne C. Martindell, will explore questions of employment, consumer protection and the establishment of day-care centers.

Councilwomen, township committeewomen, mayors, freeholders and legislators from around the state are expected to attend. Senator Martindell has asked all women office-holders to get in touch with her so that they may be included in a special directory.

Senator Martindell, characterizing the meeting as a "first" in New Jersey, said: "We know women's problems are in multiple, and can best be solved by the concentration of efforts of New Jersey's female elected public officials on some of the more paramount problems."

She said the Saturday meeting will also be a forum for discussing legislation necessary to implement the recommendations that will be made to Governor Byrne.

Barbara Sigmund, member of Princeton Borough Council, is one of those co-ordinating the meeting with Senator Martindell.

MORE SCHOOL?

Depends on Snow. Three school days to make up this year, what with snow and the energy-crisis closing. Any better way to change the school calendar than to take school into the third week in June?

"We may have more snow days ahead," Superintendent Philip E. McPherson reminded the school board gloomily at Tuesday night's brief meeting. The state may decide soon, he said, whether to amend its required 180-days a year.

Sometime this spring, Dr. McPherson continued, Princeton schools will decide whether to open each day later in the morning during 1974-75 to make up for the darkness of daylight saving.

Schools have been assured of 100 percent of their gasoline requirements, "...and there's no problem with fuel oil," reported William Karch, manager of facilities services. In other business, the board announced that screening for a permanent Middle School principal will start after February 1.

FLATWARE IS STOLEN

From Lake Drive Home. Silver flatware valued at $3,010 was stolen last week from the home of Alfred Guertin, 503 Lake Drive.

Chief Frederick Porter said that entry was gained through an open overhead garage door, from where a rear door was pried open to enter the house. The closets were ransacked, but apparently nothing else was taken in the theft, reported by Mrs. Guertin.

Sgt. Robert Heacock and Plt. Mario Musso conducted the initial investigation. It is being continued by Det. Frank Bocciafuso.

Parked Car Looted. Township police also report the looting last week of a car parked in front of the victim's home at 85 Mason Drive.

Mrs. John Denise reported that a shovel, some electrical wiring, a pair of rubber boots and a construction hard hat with a combined value of $37.70 were taken. The car was unlocked, police said.

CHANCE ARREST MADE

Of "Con Artist." When patrolman James Agins heard a description of a suspect wanted for fleeing two elderly Borough women over his walkie-talkie last Wednesday afternoon, he looked up and there in front of him was the suspect standing on Nassau Street near Tulane.

He arrested James Tilton, 38, of Trenton and transported him to headquarters, where he was charged with two counts of larceny. Released later in his own recognizance, Tilton was scheduled to appear in Borough court this Wednesday.

Stones Inside Snowballs

Snowballing has been carried to extremes by some vandals in the Witherspoon Street area. Borough police report receiving numerous complaints from motorists and others of being struck by snowballs packed around a stone. One broke a studio window at WHWH, 221 Witherspoon, another damaged a car's side view mirror. When police went to investigate, a fender of their patrol car was dented by one of the missiles. So far, there have been no arrests.

reported that Tilton visited the homes of elderly women in town, saying that he was sent by the landlord—or by Princeton University, if the house was owned by the University—to find out how much it would cost to paint the interior.

As he walked through the house pretending to make a cost estimate, police said, he would steal money from any purse or wallet he could find. He took $53 from one victim in a theft reported at 3:16 p.m., and an unknown amount of change from another three hours earlier.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

First Gas Siphoning Charges. Township and Borough police both reported this week their first cases of gasoline siphoning since the fuel crisis.

Two 17 year-old boys, one from Princeton and one from Princeton Junction, were apprehended by Township police Friday afternoon after they were seen siphoning gas from several cars parked in the Opinion Research Corporation lot off Harrison Street.

Both were later issued summonses for tampering with motor vehicles and are scheduled to appear in court before Judge Philip Carchman. Ptl. William Potts was the arresting officer.

Borough police report that a Princeton resident reported that his gas tank had been siphoned while his car was parked last week in a Princeton University lot near the IDA building on Prospect Avenue.

He told police that when he approached his car, he noticed the gas cap lying on the ground.

EIGHT SPEEDERS FINED

Seven for Careless Driving. Eight Princeton area residents were fined Monday by Borough Judge Philip Carchman for speeding and seven others as careless drivers.

Speeders include Barbara J. Rozand, 41, 207 Loetschers Place; Barbara Mastrogeorge, 39, 39 Moore Street; Geoffrey Nunes, 23, 84 Hun Road; and Ralph S. Mason, 22, 265 Brookstone Drive, all $20; Restitut Curtis Stacey, 22, 230 Hendrickson Drive, Princeton Junction; Sharon Perone, 18, 495 Ewing Street; and Bjorn Kihl, 35, 522 Ewing Street. Church Road, Titusville, $21; Karl G. Uitti, 17, 125 Bayard Lane, paid $30.

Charles R. Parmele, 48, Rolling Hill Road, Skillman, was fined $20 for a red light violation, and Victoria Abellana, 33, 168 Penn Lyle Road, Princeton Junction, paid the same amount for a stop-sign infraction.

Six of the seven fined for careless driving paid $20: Barbara Walters, 44, Meadow Road; Nancy G. Manning, 39, 117 Leabrook Lane; Theodore Valis, 20, 32 Maple Street;

DOG LICENSES DUE

Dog owners in both Borough and Township must buy 1974 licenses by the end of January.

HORIZON Bancorp

We've taken a new name we can't outgrow

After two years of expanding operation, Princeton American Bancorp is now Horizon Bancorp.

With equipment and aircraft leasing anywhere . . . now from Horizon Leasecorp.

With homeowners secondary mortgage loans . . . now from Horizon Creditcorp.

With full-service banking to industry and individuals through the total bank . . . Princeton Bank and Trust Company.

With international, commercial, trust and consumer banking services through the bank with good ideas . . . American National Bank & Trust of New Jersey.

Since our inception as a holding company, the Princeton American name has served us well. Increasingly, more and more customers began using our new and diverse services. Our International Division was helping more and more travelers as well as manufacturers with overseas needs. Our Leasecorp was leasing equipment and aircraft in all parts of the country. Our Creditcorp and Aviation Department, too, were providing services beyond the geographical areas that the name Princeton American implied.

We are still far from the level and scope of services we intend to provide. But we agreed that now was the right time to take a new name we can't outgrow. We look forward to serving you, in many ways and many places!

News Of The CHURCHES

UNION LEADER RESIGNS
Leaving Princeton, Dr. Paul A. Crow Jr. of Princeton has accepted the presidency of the Council of Christian Unity of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and will resign as general secretary of the nine-denomination Consultation on Church Union (COCU).

The new post will mean broader responsibilities in the world ecumenical movement for the 42-year-old theologian and church union leader, plus a seat on the general cabinet of his own denomination and a shift from staff to the policy-making executive committee of COCU.

General secretary since 1968 when COCU formally opened offices at 228 Alexander Street, Dr. Crow will leave the COCU staff about April 30. Disciples offices are in Indianapolis.

Dr. Crow, in accepting the position, reiterated commitment to COCU and said the church union movement is pushing ahead with new vitality. He cited its encouragement of living union at the local level, preparation of theological sections of a plan of union for denominational action, study of black-white issues confronting union, and the drafting of common liturgies for use prior to union.

"COCU is now writing a new chapter in its life, moving it beyond being the possession of a few toward the commitment of the many," he said. This desire to be in the front lines where church union must take place is one of the reasons for accepting the denominational post, Dr. Crow explained.

Goal of Ecumenism. Dr. Crow has traveled worldwide in behalf of church union. He has been a leader in COCU since its early days in 1963. Last fall, he figured prominently in a World Council of Churches conference in Salamanca, Spain, which emphasized that the ultimate goal of ecumenism is union.

As chief ecumenical officer of the Disciples, Dr. Crow will represent his church in the National and World Councils of Churches as well as at COCU. Dr. Crow asserted that the participating churches in COCU must consider the union effort more of an intimate priority than they have up to this point.

Union is essential, he said, to faithfulness to the gospel and to witness to the world to Christ's reconciling message. An honor student who passed up careers in chemistry and professional baseball for the ministry, Dr. Crow is a native of Lanett, Alabama. He and his wife, Mary, have three children. He holds the B.S. degree from the University of Alabama, B.D. degree from Lexington (Kentucky) Theological Seminary, S.T.M. from Hartford Theological Seminary, and Ph.D. from Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Obituaries

Nancy E. Hartnett, 27, a student at Seton Hall University, died January 17 in the Princeton Medical Center. She was engaged to be married in August to Mark A. Kasrel, son of Dr. and Mrs. Nathan Kasrel of 261 Prospect Avenue.

She had been admitted to the hospital two days earlier in a comma apparently caused by an aneurism.

She was employed by the State of New Jersey in the school lunch program and was studying for a master's degree in clinical psychology at Seton Hall. Her fiancé is also a Seton Hall student.

The daughter of a St. Louis, Missouri, physician, Dr. Leo J. Hartnett, she graduated from Manhattanville College. In addition to her parents, she is survived by three older sisters.

The funeral was held in St. Louis.

Commenting on Nancy Hartnett's work in Princeton, Mrs. Nancy White, Director of Corner House, said:

"Miss Hartnett was director of the Institute for Applied Psychotherapy for two years, during which time she helped many young people in the Princeton area. IAP came to Princeton because this community was becoming increasingly alarmed about the involvement of youth with drugs. Nancy easily communicated her deep concern for troubled young people and many of them came to IAP because of her warmth and because she helped them deal effectively with their feelings about drugs and about themselves."

Miss Hartnett was engaged to Mark Kasrel, who is employed at Corner House, which is continuing to assist young people in need of help. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made in Nancy Hartnett's memory to Corner House, 273 Witherspoon, Princeton.

Mrs. Clara M. Mack, 81, formerly of 215 Spruce Circle, died January 19 at the Lawrenceville Nursing Home. A lifelong Princeton resident, she was the widow of Charles H. Mack. She was a

20 Charter Study Commission Begins Research on Changes for County

At the last election, in November, Mercer County's voters approved creation of a Charter Study Commission which would consider changes in county government. The following is an explanation of the new Commission's work, prepared by its members.

It is the job of the nine Commission members who were elected in November when the Commission was approved, to make a comprehensive study of county government in Mercer and decide whether any changes in the present structure would provide more efficient and effective government.

The work of the Commission, in addition to being specific, is limited in time. Under New Jersey's landmark "Optional County Charter Law", the Commission has nine months to do its work, and must issue a report of recommendations by August 6. These recommendations must then be submitted to the voters in November for approval or rejection.

Because this is the first formal study to restructure county government under a legislative mandate, it will be an historic effort.

The existing structure of county government in New Jersey dates back to Colonial days (the title "Freeholder" for the chief elected officials, is a Colonial remnant), and as a result, county government is badly in need of modernization and strengthening. To many, county government is not meeting the needs of the people and solving their problems as it should.

Voter approval of the charter study indicates an increasing public awareness of the need for reform of county government in Mercer, as well as in the other eight New Jersey counties in which charter studies were proposed and approved last November.

County Officials Unknown. Many public opinion polls taken in New Jersey have shown that few people can identify their elected county officials by name or title or can explain what those officials do. More people turn to their local, municipal government or the State of New Jersey in seeking help or receiving services.

But county government is providing numerous essential services that many people are not aware of.

The County of Mercer, for example, has a budget of more than $30 million annually and

Come to a Meeting!

Members of the Mercer County Charter Study Commission will meet with the public at various locations around the county in the next few weeks. Here is the schedule for communities near Princeton:

This Friday, January 25: Princeton Borough Hall, 8 p.m. (for residents of Princeton Borough and Township)

Monday, January 28: Hopewell Township Municipal Bldg, Scotch Road, 8 p.m. (for resident of Hopewell Borough, Hopewell Township and Pennington)

Monday, February 4: Lawrenceville Intermediate School, 8 p.m. (for residents of Lawrence and Ewing Townships.)

Friday, February 8: East Windsor Municipal Bldg., Ward Street, 8 p.m. (for residents of West Windsor, East Windsor and Hightstown.)

employs more than 1,600 people in providing important services to Mercer residents through a rather complex governmental structure consisting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders and numerous independent boards, commissions and authorities.

The members of the Mercer County Charter Study Commission, who are charged with the responsibility for studying Mercer's county government structure, are: Edward F. Meara III, Nancy H. Schluter, Leonard D. Dileo, Mary Ann Golden, Robert R. Klein, Edward P. Lisiecki Jr., Catherine L. McGrath, W. Harry Sayen and Gerald R. Stockman. Mr. Meara is chairman and Mrs. Schluter, vice-chairman.

Four Alternatives. The "Optional County Charter Law" offers four alternative forms of county government for consideration, should the Commission decide that a change in the present structure of county government would indeed provide more efficient and effective services to Mercer County residents and taxpayers. (See box)

The legislation was really the culmination of years of struggling on the part of innumerable public officials at all levels of government, special study commissions and public-oriented civic groups. Mercer County Freeholder-Director Arthur

R. Sypek, a former president of the New Jersey Association of Chosen Freeholders, has been an activist, a leading spokesman in this effort.

County government in Mercer is complex, Mr. Sypek has noted. The freeholder who are elected by the people only have direct control over some 30 percent of the county budget and approximately 20 percent of county employees. The State of New Jersey and numerous autonomous and semi-autonomous county agencies and boards control the remainder.

The Board of Freeholders is basically an administrative body. Each freeholder is assigned a major area of responsibility as chairman of a specific committee. But these committees supervise only specific county departments and must function as liaisons to vital governmental agencies providing many of the county's services. The Board of Freeholders lacks any legal power to reorganize the government to meet changing circumstances.

Flaws in Present Form. In addition, there are three county officials elected directly by the voters: sheriff, clerk and surrogate. They are perceived as independent of the freeholders.

These are some of the major structural and legal flaws in New Jersey county government, and it was to rectify these that the "Optional County Charter Law" was proposed.

The County and Municipal Government Study Commission, which conducted a two-year study and recommended enactment of an optional charter law to allow a county to revise its form of government, perhaps pointed up the opportunities best.

The study commission concluded that county government in New Jersey, while potentially capable if strengthened, was not meeting all the problems and providing all the services it should.

The Mercer County Charter Study Commission's work can best be summarized as follows:

- An intensive research effort, thoroughly studying the present form of county government in Mercer.
- A complete examination of the four optional forms of government permitted under the new law and other forms in practice in other states.
- Recommendations for whatever changes the Commission based on its research, feels necessary for the present administrative and legislative structure of Mercer County government.

- Submission of these recommendations to public hearings and meetings with interested and concerned officials, groups and individual citizens.
- Finalization of the Commission's recommendations and development of a program to educate and inform the residents of Mercer County of the Commission's findings and recommendations.

TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part of all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships and Griggstown. At all newsstands, including TOWN TOPICS' office, it costs 15c.

What's the Best Form of County Government?

New Jersey's "Optional County Charter Law" provides four alternative forms of government for counties that decide on a change.

The four options are the county executive plan, county manager plan, county supervisor plan and board president plan.

1. The county executive plan places the entire administration of the county in the hands of a strong executive elected by the people. His powers and duties are similar to those of the president or a governor. He runs the administration, and may veto legislation passed by the freeholder board, which can then override his veto by a two-thirds vote. This plan has been used in New York (Nassau County) and Delaware (New Castle County-Wilmington).

2. The county manager plan provides for a chief executive who is responsible for the entire administration of the county. He is hired (and fired) by the freeholder board. The county manager hires employees, runs the administration without political interference, prepares the budget, reports annually to the people and the freeholders and may recommend legislation. As an appointed official, however, the manager must follow the policies adopted by the freeholders.

The county manager plan has worked well in Arlington, Va.

3. The county supervisor plan is a cross between the strong manager plan and the executive plan. It provides for a separately elected supervisor, who is officially the head of the government, but not nearly as powerful as the strong elected executive.

The supervisor oversees the administration of the county through an administrator hired by the freeholder board.

This plan was designed for counties where voters are reluctant to place too much power in either a single elected or appointed official.

4. The board president plan, more similar to the manager plan than to either the executive or supervisor plans, is the closest to the four options to New Jersey's present form of county government. However, the freeholder board and the professional administrator are given more powers than they now have, to increase the efficiency of county government.

Under this form, the board of freeholders (not the voters) chooses a president. But the board president has far less authority than a single, strong executive board, but does not have a veto or tie-breaking vote power.

The county administrator is appointed by the board, under this plan, and reports directly to the board on financial matters. While the board president oversees his work, the administrator has appointive and removal powers over other county officials.

"How Does a Sculptor Know What to Sculpt?"

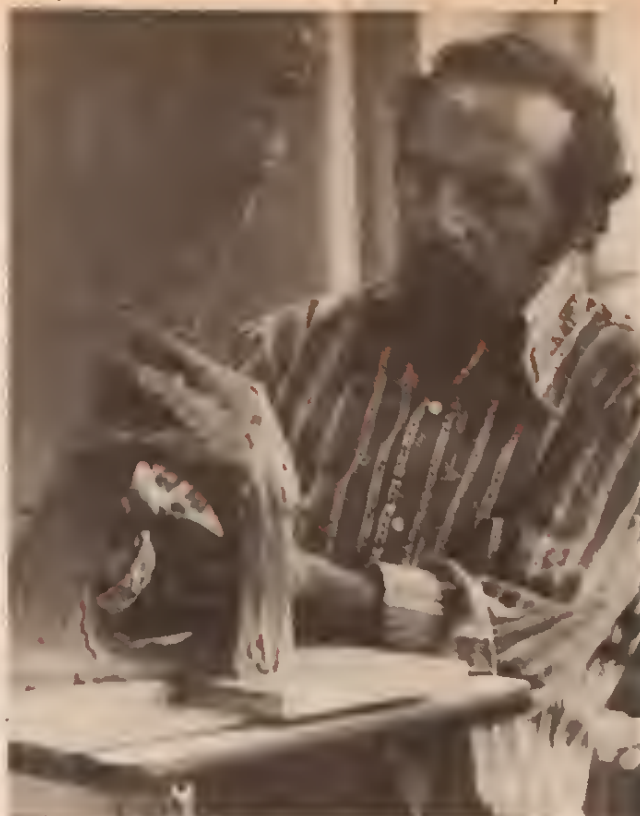

"Can you make a living, just from playing with clay?" The precise answer to this incredulous question is between sculptor Marvin Levitt and the Internal Revenue Service. But theoretically, the answer is as plain as the plaster on Mr. Levitt's hands—there he is, teaching in the Princeton Regional Schools, sculpting at the same time in the big basement atelier at Valley Road School...and making a living.

Mr. Levitt is about to complete his term as the Princeton schools' current artist-in-residence under a grant to Princeton's schools from the New Jersey Council on the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts. In February, he'll go back to his art classes for Middle Schoolers in John Witherspoon School and Louis Cichini will come in from Riverside as artist-in-residence. Rosemary Blair, another art teacher, fills in for each artist during the period of residency.

The $1,000 Arts Council grant is used for community artists who share their special talents for the residency program. So far, Vikki Moy has held a pottery workshop. Lori Lindenfeld has explained design and technique in non-loom weaving and Kathy Biringer Waltzer has demonstrated Inkle loom weaving and macrame.

For Casals. "My work right now is 'Homage to Casals' and this program has given me time to work on it," Mr. Levitt explains, moving his hands expertly in a bowl of plaster. "Also, this program gives students the chance to see the calibre and the aesthetics of a major art work—they watch me create, and help me."

Eventually, the Casals tribute will be a 20-foot bronze sculpture...."If we can get money to get it cast, and find somebody who wants it for an outdoor spot."

"HOMAGE TO CASALS:" The great cellist is commemorated by this symbolic sculpture, shown here with its creator, Marvin Levitt, artist-in-residence for the Princeton Regional Schools.

Marv Levitt has been teaching art in the Princeton schools for ten years. Bearded and informal, an artist in gentle watercolors and incisive graphics, as well as in clay and bronze, he works with young students while he works with clay.

"I've got four apprentices from Princeton High. Their programs are such that they come in here one at a time, so it's a good one-to-one situation for them."

The apprentices, who happen to be all boys this term, are in Independent Study at PHS. One or two of them may go on to art school, Mr. Levitt thinks. A third wants to be a contractor-builder. A fourth wants to be a truck-driver.

"They don't learn in any lock-step, spoon-fed way," Mr. Levitt explains, and he continues to work himself as he talks. "I show them how to make an armature, how to make a head or a figure, how to put an armature together. They helped me with my armature and eventually they'll help me with the 20-foot figure."

Gargoyle? Yes. They have their own projects. "This student, he asked me 'can I make that?' pointing to a picture of a gargoyle. Why not, I said. Another apprentice did that seated figure over there. One is working on wood-carving—quite a different technique."

"This is a working artist's studio," and he looks around him, at workbenches, works in progress, skeletal armatures, buckets of plaster, a good north light from ground-level windows.

"Elementary-school classes come in here, although I haven't been teaching classes while I'm 'in-residence.' Their questions, and he smiles, "How did you know you wanted to be an artist? Do you need special training? What tools do you use? And—how do you know what you want to make?"

"Sculpture isn't just representative, I say to them. It must TELL something. And you help it: your experience and whatever is in your background, will bring people to understand your work."

The sculptor draws from the kids their own observations....ever see animal figures in a cloud? Ever notice designs in sidewalk cracks? Ever picked up shells or stones on a beach?

"For myself, my 'Homage to Casals'....I think anyone would love to emulate his life: his freedom of thought, his understanding, his quality of life."

More Help. Students who are not apprentices, helped Mr. Levitt with the Casals, incidentally. Two girls from the Learning Community at PHS scaled his original model, calculating mathematically the angles of the armature, the depth and thickness of the various parts then making working drawings for the eventual 20-foot completed work.

The atelier in Valley Road may become, school artists hope, a center for all performing and visual arts. Sculpture, painting and pottery are already in residence. Mr. Levitt and his colleagues would like to see dance and drama next door, musicians and poets "in residence".

".....so that kids can move in and out, not be spoon-fed information, but be able to LIVE it."

West Windsor Thinking. A detailed questionnaire will be sent to all West Windsor families and an open forum held as the West Windsor Recreation Commission attempts to assess public sentiments concerning a community swimming pool.
For the past ten years there have been discussions among members of the community concerning the need for local swimming facilities. The urgency for solving this problem has increased with each announcement from swimming pool complexes in surrounding areas that they can no longer accommodate residents from West Windsor.

While the Recreation Committee expects that the pool now under construction in the West Windsor Plainsboro High School will be available for special supervised programs, it will not be suitable to serve as a community pool.
The Committee in its five-year plan, completed in 1972, recommended the construction of a community pool in 1976. The West Windsor Community Association, early in 1973, conducted a survey which indicated that a large percentage of township residents felt that a swimming pool in our community is a desirous goal.

The Swimming Pool Committee is endeavoring to thoroughly research all the requirements for the establishment of a swimming pool recreational facility. It has looked at facilities in other townships and have investigated potential land sites in West Windsor. They have also been able to obtain volunteer services from architects and accountants in researching these technical aspects of their project.

Although this Committee is under the auspices of the West Windsor Recreation Commission, it also includes other interested citizens of the Township.
Ann O'Neill has been serving as Chairman of the Committee but that position will now be taken by Mike Lynch, newly-appointed to the advisory committee of the Recreation Commission. Other active members of the committee include Bill Christensen, Jerry Cohen, Sherley Godnick, Marion Halpin, Jody Kendall, Jackie McLaughlin and Jim Ruch.

Commission announced that registration for the Youth Bowling League will be held this Saturday, at 10 a.m. at the Township Meeting Room in the rear basement of the Library Building, Village Road.

Students in grades 6 through high school will be eligible to participate. They may sign up as individuals or as four-member teams. Because of the limitations at the bowling lanes it will be necessary to limit the participants in the program to 96 bowlers.

Play will begin at 2:15 on January 26 at the Hightstown Lanes on Route 130 in East Windsor. The cost to each participant will be $1.50 per week which will include three games and the use of bowling shoes.

Peggy Ellery of the West Windsor Recreation Advisory Committee is in charge of the program. Additional volunteers willing to help supervise the program should call Mrs. Ellery at 799-1634.

CANDIDATES NIGHT SET

In West Windsor. Voters in West Windsor and Plainsboro will have an opportunity to meet the candidates for the School Board beginning at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Maurice Hawk School on Clarksville Road in West Windsor.

Mrs. Gwen Hansen, Voters Service Chairman for the West Windsor Unit of the Princeton Area League of Women Voters, announced that the event is being sponsored with the cooperation of the Parent Teachers Association.

The session will open with brief remarks from the candidates followed by groupings into smaller circles. The voters will then have an opportunity to question the candidates who will spend a specified amount of time in each circle.

Since the voters in each community vote only for the candidates from their own community, there will be a special circle where Plainsboro residents can meet with the one candidate from that community.

The following candidates will be present: Hilton L. Anderson, Richard A. Harbourn, Robert W. Prigge, Richard S. Snedeker, Norman F. Washburne, Dr. Wm. R. Watt, Robert Webb and Barbara W. Wright. Jim Davis who will be unavoidably absent will designate a representative to present his statements.

The West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional High School Social Studies Department has been invited to video-tape the opening addresses of the session as a government-in-action program directly affecting the students.

DISCUSSION WEDNESDAY

By School Board Candidates. Candidates for the Princeton Regional School Board will participate in a round table discussion Wednesday evening at 8 in the John Witherspoon School auditorium. Questions from the audience will follow the discussion.

Vying for the two Township seats are Cornelia F. Hopfield, Dietrich Meyerhofer, James Boyd Smith and Henry Wood. Hannah Fox is the unopposed Borough candidate. The discussion is co-sponsored by the Princeton Area League of Women Voters and the Princeton PTO Council.

DINNER-DANCE SET

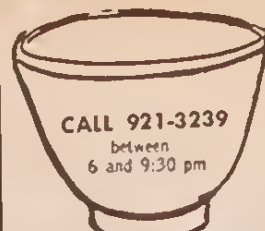

By Doctors' Wives. A dinner-dance with a Mardi Gras theme, sponsored by the Doctors' Wives of the Princeton Medical Center Auxiliary for the benefit of the Chaplaincy Fund will be held February 2 at the Princeton Day School.

Dancing will begin at 8 with dinner at 8:30. Benny Snyder will provide the music. Art students from West Windsor-Plainsfield High School have volunteered their time to make the decorations.

Mrs. H. Brown Elmes, Mrs. Gerhard Puhner and Mrs. William Boyce are chairmen of the dance. Committee chairmen include Mrs. James Elmore, Mrs. William Buks, Mrs. David Atkins, Mrs. Quentin E. THIS IS A BANK? Princeton's newest financial institution, Franklin State Bank's "Money Shop" at 20 Nassau Street, has no tellers, no vault, no bullet-proof glass, and, in fact, no cash on hand. The Money Shop actually is not a bank, but a loan production center, from which Franklin State will arrange loans of any size and provide financial counseling. Staffing the new office will be a full-time Franklin State loan officer, James E. Lothian, and receptionist-secretary Carole Hood. The Money Shop is the first of its kind in New Jersey.

MONEY SHOP OPENS
At 20 Nassau, Franklin State Bank, the young Turk of the New Jersey banking scene, invaded the Princeton market last week with plenty of hoopla, heady talk of expansion, and un-banking-like brashness.

"We are here for just one reason," said Senior Vice-President Wendell T. Breithaupt, of 43 Bertrand Drive. "Our research indicates that the total financial needs of this community aren't being met by the existing institutions."

Franklin State, which prides itself in being "New Jersey's fastest growing bank" and in being the first bank in the state to be open from 8 to 8 and 9 to 5 on Saturdays, has entered Princeton in a characteristically unorthodox manner. Its newest facility, located at 20 Nassau Street, is not a branch bank at all, but what is known as a loan production center. Under New Jersey banking regulations, no new banks may be opened in Princeton until after 1975.

The loan production center, which Franklin State calls the Money Shop, allows the 10-year-old institution to gain a foothold in the Princeton community and also may pave the way for a new branch office here in several years time.

At the Money Shop, customers may neither make deposits nor cash checks. Services that are available, according to Franklin President Anthony D. Schoberl, include "free financial counseling, low-cost bank rates, and four-hour approval service. These make the Money Shop more convenient and more helpful than many banks, and less expensive than finance companies. The Money Shop combines the advantages of both banks and finance companies but has none of the disadvantages."

Novel Approach. Last September, Franklin State Bank assumed the check-cashing franchise at the Princeton University Store. Again, the approach was novel: A bank may not operate a check-cashing service in New Jersey, but Franklin State, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, Franklin Armored Service, circumvented the problem. "The U-Store had to provide a check-cashing service because the local banks just won't cash students' checks," said Mr. Breithaupt. He and John J. Alquist, director of marketing and public relations, were talking informally with reporters at a press party last week at the Money Shop. A four-foot high robot, remotely controlled by two technicians, one of whom provided its voice, was squawking in the background. The robot was hired by the bank as a publicity gimmick.

Mr. Breithaupt and Mr. Alquist were trying hard not to be overly negative in their comments about the rest of the banking industry. "Our initial concept," said Mr. Breithaupt, "was that there is nothing that cannot be done in the way of providing financial services to the public."

Mr. Alquist compared Franklin State's expanded hours of operation to the typical banker's hours. "Banks that still close at 3 just aren't customer-oriented. In the pre-computer age there was a need to close early. That historic reason is no longer valid," he said. "Much to the consternation of the others," added Mr. Breithaupt.

Image Building. Franklin State Bank attributes part of its success to the relatively large amount of money it pours into research and development. Banking puts in just a fraction compared to industry, explained Mr. Alquist, "and most of that is for image building. That's not what's needed and not what the customer really wants."

Mr. Breithaupt, who is 40, cited youth as another factor in the bank's rise. Mr. Alquist is 31, and the manager of the Money Shop, James E. Lothian, is 30.

A bearded, heavy-set man joined the conversation. "We started this bank 10 years ago in someone's basement recreation room," said Norton Lyman, one of the original incorporators and now a trustee. "There were eight or nine of us. A food store executive, a builder, lawyer, architect. But not one banker," he said.

"If there had been one, he probably would have killed the idea right there."

Here's a tough sports question...A 19-year old girl was once chosen over Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey as "Athlete of the Year"...Babe Ruth finished second in the voting that year, 1926, and Dempsey wound up third...Who was the girl that beat them out?...Answer is Gertrude Ederle who that year became the first woman ever to swim the English Channel and finished first in the best athlete voting.

Did you know that a National Football League title game was once decided because a star player scored the winning points for the opposing team?...It happened in the NFL championship game of 1945 when the Rams beat the Redskins for the title, 15-14...The two winning points for the Rams were scored when Hall of Famer Sammy Baugh of the Redskins threw a pass from his own end zone, which hit his own goal post, and under the rules then, it was an automatic safety—giving the other team two points, and a loss to his team.

Oddly enough, of all the home runs that Hank Aaron has hit in his career, he has never hit an inside-the-park homer.

Duke Game Saturday Next for Tiger Quintet; Last Shot at Ivy Title Tuesday against Penn

Princeton University's basketball team will return to Jadwin Gymnasium Saturday night for the first time in two weeks, facing a strong Duke quintet in a battle between the Ivy League and the tough Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tigers are no better than 8-7 overall, and have lost to six of the 11 teams they have played outside their own circuit.

Missing hut two lettermen from last year's 12-14 squad, the Blue Devils still have only two seniors on their roster and are improving as they gain experience. In nine meetings to date, Princeton has never defeated Duke, and enters Saturday's game as the underdog again.

The contest is the last on the schedule outside the Ivy League. On Tuesday, the Orange and Black heads for the Palestra to play Penn in a return contest—the last chance the Tigers will have to keep the Red and Blue from making a runaway of the race. The January 5th meeting between the two teams in Jadwin Gym went to Penn in convincing fashion, 69-59, and it is unlikely that Princeton will reverse that decision away from home.

The Quakers are not the team they have been in the past, failing to handle the likes of Wake Forrest and South Carolina as nationally-ranked Penn teams have recently, but they appear to be head and shoulders above the rest of the Ivies. Princeton's hope rests on such Quaker let-downs as the slim 55-53 game with Harvard, which Penn won on a buzzer shot at the Palestra after the Tigers had disposed of the Crimson by 15 points here.

If Penn cannot play consistent ball, it could be upset by either Harvard at Cambridge or Brown in Providence, but for that matter, so could Princeton. And before the Tigers can afford to sit back and hope that Penn drops one unexpectedly, they must even the score with the Quakers at the Palestra. They managed to do so last winter, after being beaten in the game at Jadwin, but very few teams win from Penn at the Palestra in successive games.

Tigers Inconsistent. Quite understandably, a team that starts one senior and four sophomores has been almost wholly unpredictable. Added to the unusually large number of varsity newcomers playing regularly has been the absence for the past three games of 6-9 Captain Andy Rimol, bothered by loose cartilages in his knee. While he was sidelined, the Tigers handled Harvard and Dartmouth in Jadwin, but called upon to make a long bus trip to University Park, Pa., for their third game in four days, wilted in the second half against Penn State.

The Tigers' problems have stemmed from a variety of factors, principally among them the lack of a high-scoring player anywhere on the squad, a lack of aggressiveness and a tendency to draw unnecessary fouls. They have generally played a good brand of defense, holding their opponents to 60 points a game, but score so little themselves that even good defensive ball is no assurance of victory. Unlike other Princeton teams of the past, they may complete the season without a single resounding upset to their credit. The last two opportunities for such an accomplishment are at hand in the games against Duke and Penn.

provided a wholly unexpected 6-3 triumph has made the past week a pleasant one for Princeton's hockey team. The Tigers will return to action from what was to have been the term-end examination break Saturday afternoon at 2 in Baker Rink with Northeastern providing the opposition.

Cornell, defending Ivy champion, will be here Tuesday at 7, when the Tigers resume Ivy action. The Red dropped back-to-back games in surprising fashion to Brown and Yale earlier this month and then had trouble defeating Colgate but won a vital decision last week when it topped Harvard at Cambridge, 5 to 4.

Having been blasted by Clarkson, Harvard and Dartmouth by a combined score of 27 to 5 in its last three games, and beaten in its last five starts, it hardly figured that the Tigers' injury-riddled squad would revive sufficiently to defeat Yale. The Elies had shaken up eastern hockey with successive triumphs over Cornell and Boston University, and appeared ready to make a strong run for a high berth in the Ivy standings.

Corky Powers, a junior forward on the Tigers' second line, started the action at New Haven with a first-period goal, and three more shots found the target in the next 20 minutes to give the visitors a lead they never lost. Craig Dahl, the junior wing who is leading the team in scoring, got the second goal, with Walt Snickenberger and Duncan Fisher both tallying before the period ended.

Welcome goals by sophomore defenseman Paul Dionne and Alan Rosner rounded out the Princeton attack, far and away its best in Division I games this season. As usual, the Tigers were outshot, 35 to 33, but goalie Phil Robinson gave another good performance to assure the team of a 2-3 mark in the Ivy race, its highest mid-January standing in five years.

The majority of skiers in the nation enjoy the sport for its own sake. The oft-injured Mark Stuckey lost some teeth when he hit the boards at Hanover but returned to the first line in time for the game at New Haven.

TWO MORE FOR PHS
Trenton Here Friday. A drained Princeton High School basketball team managed to survive Peddie last week, 67-64, and then went on to polish off St. Anthony's, 69-54, Friday to increase its record to a satisfying 7-3 mark.

But there are red lights flashing ahead. Friday afternoon, the Little Tigers will be at Steinert, which over the weekend lost a dramatic, double-overtime upset bid to second-ranked Trenton High, 63-66. The question to be answered, then, is whether the Spartans can rekindle their emotional fire in time for PHS.

The Spartans are led by center Mike Zolnierzak, who had a game-high 28 points against Trenton and 19 rebounds. Both schools at the end of the weekend had identical 7-3 records.

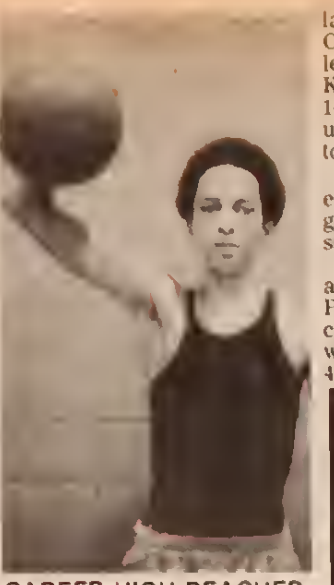

Then on Tuesday comes the confrontation between the same Trenton team, presently 10-1, and PHS. It will be played at the PHS gym, starting at 3:45.

Following last week's pulsating loss to Ewing, it's no secret that PHS coach Marv Trotman and his squad think they can hold their own against Trenton and Ewing and win. PHS has not defeated Trenton in the last 15 years and this may be the Blue and White's last shot. Next year, PHS will be grouped with Group III schools in Mercer County League play, while Trenton will remain in the larger, Group 4 division.

This will be the first meeting between the two schools since the 1970-71 season. After Trenton trounced PHS twice that year, 83-46, and 98-33, a season in which PHS won only three of 24 games, the series was stopped.

But with the formation last year of the first official Mercer County League, the two schools were back on each other's schedule. Last year, when PHS won the County title and with runner up Trenton suspended from participating in the annual tournament by the State Interscholastic

CAREER HIGH REACHED:
Ted Brown scored a career-high of 20 points last week to lead Princeton High to a 69-54 victory over St. Anthony's—its seventh win of the season.

Athletic Association, there was talk of arranging a post-season game between them, but nothing came of it.

A Trenton defeat of Ewing in their battle this past Tuesday would rank the Tornadoes number one when they meet the Little Tigers. A PHS win would then put Trotman's cagers squarely in the thick of it for county honors.

Brown Has Career High.
Home team St. Anthony's Friday yielded to the temptation to double team Bobby King, Princeton's scoring leader. It worked—and it didn't work.

The Iron Mikes limited King to four points in the first half. But the team's other forward, Ted Brown, was there to take up the slack. He connected for 10 of Princeton's 12 points in the first period. He had 14 at the half and 20 by game's end—his career high.

"They were double-teaming Bobby and I was standing right behind him getting all the shots," said Brown. When St. Anthony's, rightfully, began to pay more attention to Brown, King scored 13 points in the second half to finish with 17.

Pete Watson added 12 points to the Little Tiger cause and Steve Towns nine more as St. Anthony went down to its seventh loss in eight games. The losers' Charlie Didun was high among all players with 24 points.

See-saw Contest. The game with Peddie saw PHS take a 35-28 halftime lead, but the Falcons came back to tie early in the final period and then go ahead on a jumper by Rich Carstens.

From there, the lead switched back and forth several times until a driving layup the length of the floor by Craig Robinson gave PHS the lead for good with 3:24 left. King converted both ends of a 1-and-1 situation to put PHS up, 61-58, with 20 seconds left to play.

"We were wound up tight emotionally for the Ewing game and that drained us," said Trotman after the game.

King (24), Robinson (14) and Watson (10) were high for Princeton. Carstens, Peddie's center, was tops for the losers, who saw their record dip to 4-4.

Coach Bernard on Women's Hockey Team:
"If They Could Skate, They'd Be Terrific!"

John Bernard, the Princeton insurance executive who is the founding father of the community Pee-wee hockey programs here, never dreamed he would see the day when women were playing competitive ice hockey. Now that he's not only seeing it but also coaching the newest competitive sport in Princeton University's women's athletic program, Bernard finds the interest among girls quite understandable.

"Let's face it," he says. "Not everyone wants to be a figure skater."

At Princeton, Bernard found a group of about 16 coeds who wanted to do something more than figure-8s and pirouettes on the ice. Last month, with a minimum of fanfare, Princeton's women, half in figure skates, half in hockey, played their first game after only six practice sessions.

Princeton lost to the Willow Grove, Pa., Wallabees, 4-3, at Baker Rink. Bernard, who had expected his team to be clobbered, was ecstatic.

"Willow Grove had women ranging in age from 14 to 36," he says. "Why, some of them even had regular uniforms! But our girls really are pretty good athletes. They play position and they pass well. They are better disciplined than many boys' teams, and they listen to you."

Just One Problem. "If they could only learn to skate they'd be terrific," their coach says.

The interest of Princeton women in ice hockey goes back only about a year. Several women first demanded a tryout with the Princeton varsity men's team. They were strongly discouraged. Then they asked to play in the men's intramural program—again with no success.

"The University said that girls ought to compete on their own, and that if they wanted their own team, they would have to prove they want it," says Bernard. "I think that's the way it should be because girls can't really compete with boys in this sport. Girls are slow motion on ice. They just aren't strong enough."

Faced with the challenge of starting their own team, and knowing Bernard through his interest in the varsity team at Baker Rink, the girls asked him to be their coach. That was about a year ago and they managed to get in only four practices (at 10 o'clock at night) before the season was over.

National Growth. This year, the team played its first game in early December. Even with no pre-game publicity, it still managed to draw about 100 spectators to Baker Rink. Bernard is weighing the possibility of additional games with the University of Pennsylvania, Brown, Cornell, Choate School and Taft—all of which have women's teams—as well as a return match with the Wallabees.

"If the girls are serious," Bernard says, "maybe next year they will be out on the ice every night." Practices this winter have been twice a week.

Bernard also sees a national growth of interest in hockey among girls and women. His firm, Sturhahn, Dickenson & Bernard of 14 Nassau Street, is one of the nation's principal insurers of amateur hockey groups. Bernard estimates that girls are participating in about 50 percent of these programs across the country.

Women's rules generally forbid checking in any zone and provide for automatic icing as soon as the puck crosses the red line. The second rule, the insurance man-coach says, ought to be part of men's hockey as well. "How many times does that offensive man ever beat the defenseman to the puck?" he asks. "Hardly ever, but you get a lot of injuries from skaters chasing after it."

New World. In the past year Bernard, a former varsity hockey player at Princeton, has been introduced to the brave new world of women's athletics. "They really enjoy the sport," he says of his players, "and no one makes fun of them for it."

"I thought the guys at the rink would make fun of them, but they think it's great. The girls' parents think it's great. The girls think it's a great sport. If they can do it without getting hurt, why not?"

PHS MATMEN WIN PAIR
Steinert Here Next. Two lopsided wins—a 42-16 victory over Notre Dame Friday and a 57-0 shellacking of Hamilton earlier—added up to the third straight success for the Princeton High School wrestling team.

Coach Tom Murray's squad (3-2) will oppose Steinert High School next on Wednesday evening at the Spartans' gym. Starting time of the varsity meet is 8. This Wednesday evening at 8, PHS was scheduled to entertain Ewing.

The Little Tigers worked the Irish over for six pins, getting falls from Dave Robinson, 101 pounder Jerry Moriarty (115), Mike Holcombe (122), Bob Zinsmeister (148), Vince Ader (158) and heavyweight Dan Poling. Angelo Arcaro (170) and Jeff Drummond (188) won decisions.

Asked if he thought Princeton's win would turn out to be so one-sided, Murray responded: "No, not really. I thought it would be a lot closer."

He cited Drummond for defeating his opponent, who had won the Christmas Wrestling Tournament. Drummond suffered an ankle injury in that event and had to withdraw.

Ader, he added "wrestled very well and is really coming on." Ader is a sophomore.

Visiting Hamilton, just starting in the sport, was no match last Wednesday for the Little Tigers. This is only the second year of varsity competition for the Hornets.

PHS RUNNER FAVORED
In Mile in Indoor Meet. John Woodside, one of Princeton High School's premier distance runners, is seeded number one in the mile event in the 11th annual Lawrence Jaycee Indoor Track Meet to be held Saturday at Lawrenceville School's Lavino Fieldhouse.

Other county schools that will participate include Notre Dame, Steinert, Hamilton, Ewing, St. Anthony, Hopewell Valley, Lawrence, Trenton, and Hightstown. Starting time is 6 p.m.

Woodside earned his top ranking based on his season's best time of 4:34. Ewing's Jim Wylie is seeded second with a time of 4:40.

There will be two invitational races for girls—the 60-yard dash and 440. Hillary Noden, Hopewell Valley's outstanding distance runner, is entered in both.

Two days earlier on Thursday, the PHS winter track team will oppose Steinert in a 3:45 dual meet on the Spartans home field.

The Little Tigers will enter their meet against Steinert unbeaten in four starts. Friday they squeezed by Trenton, 43-34, and earlier routed South Brunswick, 61-16.

Against Trenton, the Blue and White led by one going into the last event—the high jump. A first by sophomore Fred Berkelhammer (5-4) and a second by Mile White assured the win.

White was a high scorer in the meet with a first in the 50-yard hurdles, second in the 440 and high jump and third in the 50-yard dash. Trenton captured firsts in all the sprinting events.

Woodside won the mile (4:42) and Pete Nichols captured his specialty—the two-mile—for the victors with a clocking of 10:03.

Because of poor weather, the meet against South

Jadwin Gym and the Blue and White responded by sweeping firsts in every event.

White won two events, Nichols the mile and Woodside the half-mile. Tim Anderson led a four-man sweep of the two mile. His time was 10:18.

PDS KEEPS ROLLING
Wardlaw, Farragut Next. It's just reached the halfway point in a demanding schedule, but already this PDS team has been better equipped to handle the task. Princeton Day basketball team has proved itself as the best ever in the Panthers' history.

Piling up wins number seven and eight last week against a lone defeat, the Blue and White still have several difficult contests ahead, playing Lawrenceville, Pennington and Peddie within a seven-day span, but no other

Last week, a what was expected to be a close game, the Panthers avenged their only defeat of the season by rolling over Hun, 74-51. The Raiders won the first time the two schools met in the Hightstown Christmas Tournament.

This time around, PDS had

Hun's offense fairly well souted. When it fell behind in the second quarter, the Panthers switched from a zone to a man-to-man defense, adding an all-court press at the outset of the third quarter. The result turned a 30-29 halftime deficit, into a 55-34 lead. Coach Alan Taback praised his players for doing a "super job" on the press.

Ron Webster pumped in 26 points for PDS, and held Hun's high-scoring Biff Hollowell to four points. Frank Konstantynowicz had 17 points and Tom Dalrymple, 15 points and 18 rebounds for the winners. Greg Bash contributed 10 second-half points. Friday, the Blue and White kept up the momentum, breezing past Blair, 70-47. Webster, again, led all scorers with 25 points, as PDS jumped out to a 21-9 advantage in the first period and increased its lead steadily from there.

RACE TIGHTENS

In Adult Basketball, Torrid Conte's Bar won two games last week to take over first place and Perks and El-De's both moved into contention in the Princeton Adult Basketball League.

Princeton Medical Center (4-1) saw its unbeaten record and league lead wiped out, 91-47, by a potent Conte's attack led by sharpshooting Whit Rutter. Rutter fired in 33 points, mostly on medium range jumpers, in the first three quarters as Conte's raced to a 70-24 spread.

The tight Conte's zone held Medical Center's high scoring Dennis Wilson to just three field goals over the same span. Wilson managed to finish with 20 points, well below his league-leading average (32.4), while consistent Craig Hannas contributed 20 for the winners.

Conte's, in its second game, pulled away with a fourth quarter spurt to top Kingston Wine and Liquor, 62-44. Conte's ran off the final 10 first quarter points to gain a 20-12 advantage. The lead was still just 44-36 entering the final period, when a basket by Rutter, followed by two quick Hannas scores, gave Conte's a 50-36 margin with just 6:20 to play and dash Kingston's upset hopes.

Once again, Hannas (20) and Rutter (14) were big guns for Conte's. Kingston's Bruce Cnburn had 14 and Tim Kearns added 11.

While Conte's was taking two, Perks (4-1) and El-De's (3-1) both won to edge closer to the top of the standings. Perks, leading the winless Nets 37-23 midway in the third quarter, exploded for 23 consecutive points and breezed to a 68-37 victory, as Mark Baldwin netted 19. El-De's raced to a 26-4 start with Doug Battle who connected for 15 early points and rolled over the Teachers, 84-52. El-De's displayed lots of depth in placing four men in double figures, led by Battle's 17. Joe Diefenhach had 21 for the losers.

The Librarians (3-2) employed a new zone defense and fast break to good effect as they romped past the Hawks, 71-47, and Nets, 69-44. Newcomer Muck Swain pumped in 21 against the Hawks and added 18 in the Nets game to pace the Librarians' attack, while brothers Ken and Ed Berger hit twin figures in both games.

In other action, Ivy Inn defeated the Triggers 74-38, to up its log to 3-2. Mike Maguire, former Hun School and Susquehanna eager, hit for 26 and big Houston Hinson added 21 as Ivy, ahead by 10 points at halftime, shut out the Triggers 20-0 in the decisive third quarter.

The standings:

Conte's	5-1
Perks	4-1
PMC	4-1
El-De's	3-1
Ivy Inn	3-2
Kingston W & L	3-2
Librarians	3-2
Hawks	2-3
Triggers	1-5
Teachers	0-4
Nets	0-6

KING, BROWN EXCEL

In 79-63 Hamilton Win. Two outstanding performances by Princeton High's Bobby King and Ted Brown were more than enough to offset a PHS defense that went to sleep late in the game Tuesday, allowing visiting Hamilton to cut a 64-43 Little Tiger lead in the third period to 70-63 with just a little over three minutes left to play. PHS coach Marv Trotman was able to settle his chargers down, however, to play for the good shot and the home team won its eighth going away, 79-63. Hamilton suffered its 10th setback in 11 games.

Held to a single basket in the first period, King exploded for 13 points in the second and 12 more in the third, ending with 33—his second highest production of the season. He grabbed 16 rebounds, had three assists and two blocked shots for another of his patented regal performances. Early in the second period with PHS ahead, 19-16, King scored 11 of his team's next 13 points as the Blue and White zoomed to a 32-18 margin.

Brown, King's forward counterpart, made it two fine games in a row. He was 8 for 10 from the floor, scored 18 points, had four assists and 11 rebounds. Steve Towns contributed 10 points—eight in the second half—and Pete Watson six, all in the first period. Watson retired from the game with his fourth personal foul with 6:01 remaining in the third period and Randy Bullock took over, scoring seven points.

"We Started to Relax." "When a team gets momentum like Hamilton did in the second half, and if you ever let them get off the hook, you're in trouble," commented Trotman. "We did; we started to relax. We played terrible defense, we went to sleep out there. They must have had ten uncontested layups."

They used the same press they had in the first half and all of a sudden we got in a hurry and let it bother us. I told the kids before the game that we were going to score a lot of points but Hamilton was going to come back and make it close. That's exactly what they did; they do it every time we play them."

HUN GIRDS FOR BATTLE

With Undeclared Pennington. Last week's drubbing by rival Princeton Day School was humiliating to the favored Hun School basketball team but it didn't mean a thing as far as league standings were concerned.

But the upcoming game with Pennington School does. Pennington is undefeated in 10 games and will probably fight it out with Hun for the championship of the northern division of the Penn Jersey League. Hun, the defending league champion, is 1-0 in league play following Friday's easy 73-40 victory over George School.

"I have an idea what they (Pennington) are like. I saw them play in the Jamboree," commented Hun coach Dave Leete. "It's just a matter of how well we play. I can tell you one thing; it's going to be an exciting game."

It will be held Friday evening at 8 in the Pennington gym.

Leete added that Pennington's strength lay in their guards—Jerry Eure and Wayne Emme, the two leading scorers on the team. "Their sophomore center (6-5 Reese Kramer) has also come along in the last two or three weeks," he continued.

Hun, in turn, also has an outstanding pair of guards in Tony Trani and Brian Logue. Opposite Kramer Hun has Biff Hollowell, who is rapidly approaching the 1,000-point career mark, and on matchups alone, the game promises to be, as Leete predicts, "exciting."

Friday, Hun had no trouble at all dispatching George School, leading 36-13 at the half. Hollowell and Brent Bystrzycki, team co-captains, combined for 30 Hun points.

Fell Apart. Leete described the PDS embarrassment as "one of those games you don't even want to think about."

Ahead 30-29 at the half, Hun came unglued in the third period before a pressing man-to-man PDS defense in the third quarter which limited Hun to four points. The visiting Panthers, meantime, hlew Hun out by pouring in 26 in 26.

"We completely fell apart for the first time," said Leete. "We had no defense, no rebounds, we didn't shoot at all. We weren't patient."

As for the PDS press, described by PDS coach Al Taback as a "super job," Leete replied, "Yes, they pressured us but we've faced that kind of pressure before and handled it." He acknowledged that "PDS played good defense on us."

In fact, so effective was the Panther defensive curtain that it held Hollowell to a season low of four points. Trani led Hun with 17, followed by Bystrzycki, 10; Logue, 9; and Dave Clark, six. PDS, in winning, thus atoned for its only setback of the season which came at the hands of Hun in the Hightstown Christmas Tournament.

TOP SCORERS LISTED

In Women's Tennis. Irene Daubert of Hopewell, Doris Mapes of Pennington, and Jackie Hites of East Brunswick are the leading scorers as the Women's Tennis League at the Princeton Indoor Tennis Center passes the halfway point of the season.

With 15 sessions to go, the tournament group competition was led by Irene Daubert, followed by Laura Goldfeld and Judy Smith, both of Princeton.

are Jo Mendelson of Princeton, second; Shirley Porter of East Windsor, third; and Jenny Lehman of Princeton, fourth.

The intermediate group is being paced by Jackie Hites; Princeton's Kay Hamel is in second; and Jean Roll of Princeton Junction has third place.

The league has been oversubscribed and all available places filled for this year. But open time at the Indoor Tennis Center is still available for groups wishing to play on their own. For information call Julie White at 924-0015.

SKIDS ON ICY ROAD

Car Hits Pole. Dora L. Berry, 36, Green Avenue, Belle Mead, had to be treated at Princeton Medical Center for a laceration of the face, which she received Tuesday morning when her car skidded on Cherry Valley Road and struck a pole.

Mrs. Berry told Ptl. Robert Nielsen that she was near Mountain View Road when her car began to skid off the road. The entire front end of her 1973 station wagon was damaged. The mishap occurred at 9:01.

Turning Accident. The glare of bright lights while she was turning from Spruce onto Chestnut Street late Sunday night resulted in an accident for Michele Pinelli, 50, of 42 Henry Avenue. Her small foreign car jumped the curb, struck four brick pillars supporting a porch at 47 Chestnut Street, pushing one of them into a parked car owned by Alice D. Williams of the same address. The property is owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Glover.

A passenger, Mrs. Candida Pinelli, 45, of 42 Henry Avenue, sustained a laceration near her mouth, but refused medical aid. Mrs. Pinelli told police that as she was turning a car was coming in her direction with its bright lights on and she could not see the road. She was ticketed by Sgt. Ralph Procaecino for careless driving.

Opel, the best selling car in Germany. Why it's right for America now.

Gasoline in Germany is a scarce and costly commodity — and has been for years.

The Germans have ways.

But over the years, the Germans have developed ways of coping with the situation. And one of their methods seems particularly appropriate to America, especially now.

That method is Opel

Its ability to wring kilometers per gallon under the guidance of heavy-footed German drivers has helped it become the best selling car in that ardent nation

Economically propelled.

The Opel Manta and Sportwagon shown here are the product of this rigorous, disciplined environment

The heart of their economy is a small, precision-built, 1900cc cam-in-head 4-cylinder engine

Mated to this is a standard 4-speed transmission (a 3-speed automatic is also available) But in either case, the combination is more than enough to scale steep mountain passes or span vast, sweeping Autobahns

And what works there works here

Opel. The best selling car in Germany.

Demanding buyers; conservative spenders.

Above all, the German people demand a dollar's worth of — automobile for a dollar spent

And in that respect, they have a great deal in common with today's American buyer. Which brings us to perhaps the best reason of all for buying an Opel

It is, in anybody's language, a good buy.

It exudes quality.

But the price is hardly what you might expect to pay for a European touring car of such Aryan qualifications.

Sophisticated simplicity.

Underneath, Opel exhibits the mechanical finesse for which the Germans are rightly lauded.

Front and rear stabilizer bars are standard, as is rack-and-pinion steering and large, power front disc brakes.

Moreover, the chassis layout is fundamentally simple and efficient.

Opel Manta Coupe

No-nonsense seating, instrumentation.

The Opel interior also reflects its German heritage.

In both the Manta Coupe and the Sportwagon, front bucket seats are designed for comfort in sharp turns as well as long stretches of Autobahn, and are covered in long-wearing, perforated vinyl. And the seatbacks recline at the twist of a knob

Instrumentation, per typical German practice, is a disciplined array of gauges, lights, dials, and switches, all strategically placed to be easy to read or reach, depending

WE CLEAN CARPETS

We don't clean clothing, hats or draperies. Cleaning carpets is not just a side-line with us. It's our only business and we take it very seriously. We use the most advanced systems, operated by thoroughly trained people.

"STEAM" cleaning is in great demand. And we use the system most often. But we don't want to mislead you.

OUR SYSTEM DOES NOT USE STEAM. Can you imagine applying steam (212 degrees) to your wool carpets? Your carpet would turn, instantly, into a shapeless throw rug.

We use HOT WATER EXTRACTION. This method is perfectly safe since we immediately recover 95% of all the liquid we inject into your carpet, leaving it completely clean and freshly alive.

When you are ready to rejuvenate your valuable carpets, give us a call for quick, reliable service.
